OPENING MINDS TO BUILD BOLDER FUTURES

SATELLITE SCREENINGS

Around the festival, beyond the screens: stories, experiences, and the conversations they open.

Every festival has more stories than screens and more audience than seats.

Satellite Screenings pop up around the edges of the community: throughout the festival venues show a film that showcases their community, pair it with an experience that opens the senses, and host a conversation about what the story asks of us. The conversations accrue across the festival, and real-time curation ties the constellation together.

Each satellite is a venue, a film, an experience, a conversation. Together they draw a constellation around the festival.

1. SCREEN
   A short or a feature chosen for this venue and its community. Stories the main slate could not hold.
2. EXPERIENCE
   Sound, breath, movement, stillness. Something that lands the film in the body before anyone speaks.
3. CONVERSE
   A facilitated dialogue, held the same way at every satellite, around two questions.
4. CURATE
   What the room discovers is captured and carried forward. Every screening adds to the festival's map. Every conversation makes a bolder future possible.

> Experiences move people, conversations crystallize:
>
> What shifted in me as a result of this experience?
> How can we bring this into our communities?

What accrues becomes its own story.

The screenings, the rooms, and the questions can be curated as they happen, so a festival's satellite season can grow into a docuseries of its own, and bolder futures travel home with everyone who was in a room.
